When Gary Edell started making homemade potato chips in 2009, he never thought it would grow into a business. For years he would make his chips for friends, family, business associates, and whoever else wanted them. When his kids went off to college, he would send them packages filled with his delicious chips. Whenever his kids' friends would say, "these are AMAZING where did you get them?" the response was always "they're My Dad's Chips!" and the rest is history.

What makes us really excited is creating something that brings happiness and well-being. To create something that people intuitively enjoy, that feels good and does good. We believe that food is an amazing medium for inspiring joy, connection and environmental change. We're idealistic about organic agriculture. To us, it is without a single scoop of doubt, the most responsible and earth-friendly way to grow our food. In short, organic agriculture is about working with nature instead of fighting it.
